SPECIAL FORMULAS

We shall be pleased at all times to submit prices of or to prepare mixtures for any purpose whatever, according to the customer's own formula.

HOW MUCH SEED?

Grasses	Size of Area	Pounds required
Blue Grasses	1000 sq. ft.	1 lb.
Bent Grasses	1000 sq. ft.	2 lbs.
Fescues	1000 sq. ft.	4 lbs.
Clover	1000 sq. ft.	8 ozs.

HOW TO CARE FOR A LAWN

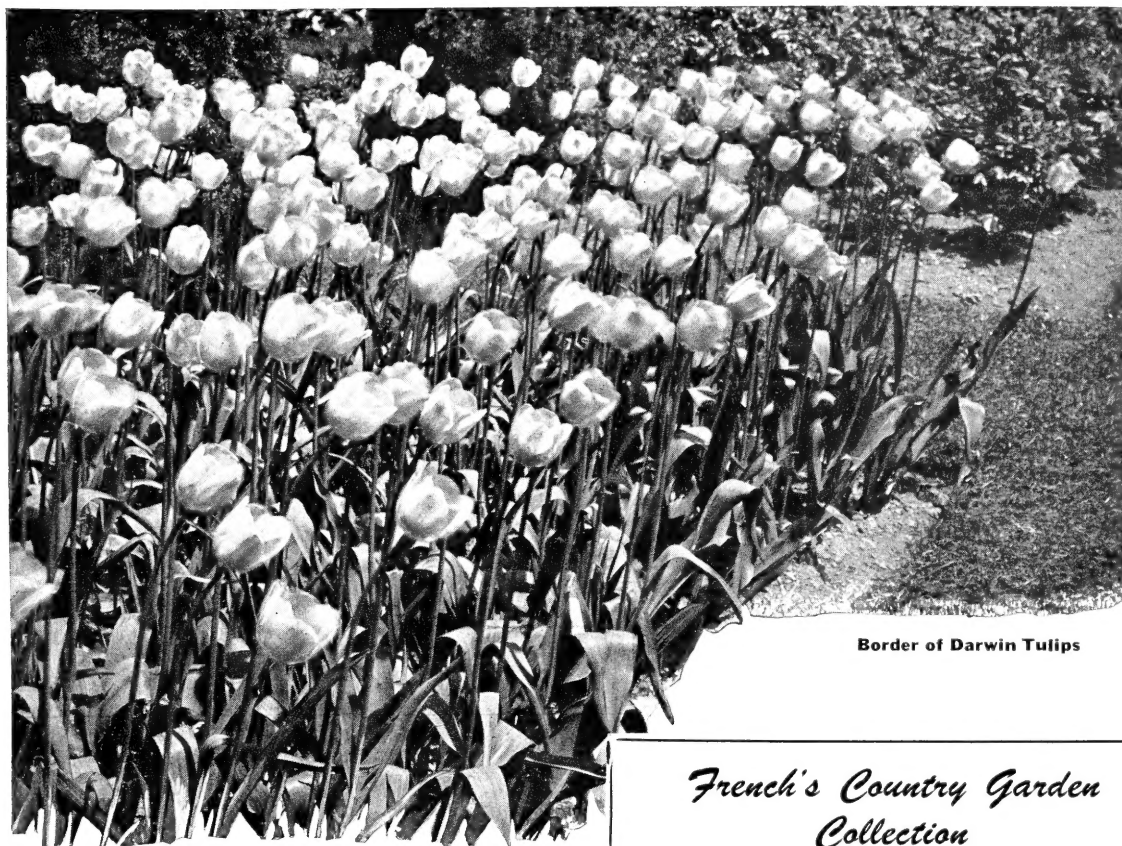

Apply fertilizer at the rate of 15 to 20 pounds per 1000 square feet. 10-6-4 with 33% Organic is ideal for this section.

A heavy clay soil can be improved greatly if you use peat moss at the rate of 2 or 3 cubic yards per 1000 square feet.

Rake lightly, breaking the crust that may have formed, but no deeper than 1/2 inch. Seed in two directions. Rake or roll to get seed in contact with soil. Two pounds of fine seed per 1000 square feet is all that is needed. A quicker-growing mixture, composed of larger seeds, requires 4 pounds per 1000 square feet. Water until grass is well established.

Owing to the variations in market value, the prices quoted above are subject to change without notice.

Botanical or Species Tulips and Their Hybrids

The following collection of Botanical Tulips includes a great number of beautiful and interesting varieties, which show a bewildering variation of size and shape of flowers, structure of leaves, habits, etc. The only thing they have in common is the fact that they grow wild in some parts of the world—Asia Minor, Central Asia, Greece, the Mediterranean. Cultivation has not modified them and they may be planted in the rock garden between creeping plants or in colonies in small, warm nooks, a situation where the larger-flowered garden Tulips would be out of place. Blooming period April 1 to late May.

CLUSIANA (The Lady Tulip). Outer petals bright cherry-red; inner petals creamy white; violet base. Small flower, but very distinct and beautiful. 8 in. 50c for 3; $1.40 for 10; $12.00 per 100.

EICHLERI. Crimson-scarlet, shaded orange; glistening black center marked with gold. Lily-type flower. 8 in. 35c for 3; $1.00 for 10; $8.00 per 100.

FOSTERIANA, RED EMPEROR (Mme. Lefebvre). A glorious scarlet-red Tulip of remarkable size and substance; large black center with a yellow border. May be forced in mid-February. Flowering at the same time as Narcissus, it should be planted with or between them. 18 in. 45c for 3; $1.20 for 10; $10.00 per 100.

HYACINTHS

Hyacinths

Fragrant and Delightful Hyacinths

Hyacinths for outdoor growing should be planted so that the bulb tip is covered no more than 3 inches. Use general procedure (Cultural Bulletin on request) as for all hardy bulbs. Hyacinths in glasses should be started in a cool basement until heavy root growth develops and then moved to a bright, airy room.

Lilium Regale

Lilies by Jan de Graaff

A selective list of the best species and varieties grown by Mr. de Graaff.

ENCHANTMENT. The outstanding Mid-Century Hybrid. Enchantment is an upright Lily of excellent habit, with many well-formed flowers of a vivid nasturtium-red color. Late June and early July flowering; unusually long-lasting. 50c each; $1.00 for 3.

GOLDEN CHALICE HYBRIDS. A hybrid strain built up from crosses between various upright-flowering Chinese species and their garden variants. The range of colors varies from clear lemon-yellow through rich warm shades of gold and apricot-orange. Plant the bulbs in a warm, sunny location where they will get full sun. Set them at least 6 inches deep, since the stem roots are heavy and numerous underground stem bulblets are formed. June flowering. Height 2½ to 4 feet. 50c each; $1.00 for 3.

GOLDEN CLARION STRAIN. These are the true Aurelian Trumpet Lilies that have had such a sensational success wherever shown. The color range at present is from clear lemon-yellow through straw and buttercup-yellow to deepest gold. Some plants have entirely self-colored flowers; others show distinct brown or wine-red stripes on the reverse of the petals. These Lilies flower in the last weeks of July; they stand from 5 to 7 feet tall when well grown from mature bulbs. $1.50 each.

HEART'S DESIRE. An Aurelian Hybrid strain. These Lilies are essentially shallow, widely flared and bowl shaped, in shades of white, cream and yellow-orange. July flowering. $1.50 each.

OLYMPIC HYBRIDS. The color range of all the parent plants is present in the Olympic Hybrids, in addition to new combinations and types which include creamy trumpets, soft fuchsia-pink and the popular cool icy-green. The exteriors of the petals are delicately shaded with light greenish brown or soft wine tints and in some instances are a pure, glistening white. They bloom in July, later than L. regale, and their period of flowering extends from three weeks to a month. Plant the bulbs 5 to 6 inches deep in well-drained soil, and they can then be left undisturbed for several years. $1.00 each.

PROSPERITY. An entirely new color in the Mid-Century Hybrids—lovely, cool lemon-yellow, with an outward-facing flower. The plants stand more than 4 feet tall and make clumps through natural division. $1.00 each.

SUNBURST. An Aurelian strain. Colors include white, creamy yellow and orange. The flowers are of unusual texture and substance and are suitable for either garden or cut-flower work. $2.00 each.

VALENCIA. A midseason Lily of fine, rich orange-yellow. Very large, rather flat flowers having a slight midrib of deeper orange. 50c each; $1.00 for 3.

HOW TO PLANT BULBS

IT'S EASY TO GROW BULBS THIS WAY!

The simple planting chart above shows average planting depths and spacing for hardy bulbs. In cases when you have a light, friable soil, Tulip bulbs may be planted deeper, so that they will give more years of bloom before they need to be divided.

Exceptions to the depths shown in the chart should be made in the case of Lilium candidum, which, unlike other Lilies, should be planted only 2 to 3 inches deep.

After blooming, bulbs should be left undisturbed until the foliage has turned yellow. It is not necessary to dig bulbs up after blooming.

A good application of coarse bonemeal is beneficial when applied to soil before planting in the fall. Sacco Plant Food (4-12-4), when applied in the spring after bulbs have grown 2 to 3 inches, will encourage a stronger stem and larger, brighter flower.

OUTDOOR CULTURE

Daffodils thrive in any good garden soil, preferably deep well-drained loam. Deep preparation of the soil is necessary, and old rotted manure or compost may be worked in 16 or 18 inches below the surface, so as not to come in direct contact with the bulbs. FRESH MANURE SHOULD NEVER BE USED. A liberal amount of raw bonemeal should also be worked in with the rotted manure and compost.

In medium soils, cover the bulbs about twice their depth, and a little deeper in lighter soils. The average for most sorts is 3 to 4 inches from the top of the bulb. Set bulbs at a uniform depth; otherwise they may flower irregularly.

POT CULTURE

Daffodils should be potted in September or October in good loamy soil, adding a little sand or leafmold and a small amount of bonemeal (about 2 pounds to the bushel of soil).

The old pots must be washed thoroughly and allowed to dry before using. New pots should be soaked. Provide drainage by placing pieces of charcoal or fragments of pots over the drainage hole. A little ground peat in the bottom regulates drainage, retaining moisture.

After ten or twelve weeks they may be taken indoors for flowering. Plant the earliest varieties first, thus extending the flowering season.

Do not bring them into a warm temperature—50 to 60 degrees is best at first. Do not give any bottom heat. Later, when the flower buds are well advanced, the temperature may be increased to not more than 65 degrees.

When the pots are first brought to the light, the tender shoots may be covered for a day or two with an inverted flower pot to prevent injury from light or draft. A little weak liquid manure once a week, until buds burst, will hasten the flowers after growth has started.

AMARYLLIS

There are very few bulbs that will give more satisfaction when grown indoors than the beautiful Amaryllis. This gorgeous plant is very easily grown, and will bloom in six to seven weeks after potting. Use a 5 or 6-inch earthen flower pot, depending on the size of the bulb.

Use a mixture of good sandy loam with about a heaping teaspoonful of bonemeal or sheep manure, and mix well. Plant bulb about two-thirds its length in the soil, leaving the neck or top of bulb extending above the surface.

Water very sparingly until the flower bud or buds appear, and then as they grow taller add a little more water each time. Do not let it get dry.

Place pot in a good light until flower buds are well above the bulb, then place in a sunny window; do not feed plant until after it has bloomed, as the bonemeal or sheep manure will suffice up to that time.

After the blooms have died away, cut off flower stems, and by that time the foliage will have started to grow. Keep this foliage growing by watering well every two or three days, and feed plant once a month with some good well-balanced fertilizer (we recommend Sacco Plant Food). This plant food is excellent for all kinds of flowers both indoors and out; use one level teaspoonful to a 5 or 6-inch pot. Loosen the soil slightly in the pot; put fertilizer evenly around the pot and water in.

When warm weather arrives, about May 10, place pot in the garden and sink in ground to top of pot; in dry weather water well and feed once a month. Keep plant growing all summer, until about October. Then bring inside and place it in the basement on its side. When the foliage dies, cut it off at top of bulb; do not take bulb out of pot, but place pot in a dark corner of basement and then forget it.

About the end of January see if the bulb has made any sign of growing. If so, bring pot to the light, water lightly and proceed as before.

TULIPS

OUTDOOR CULTURE

Planting can be done any time between late September and mid-November when the ground is moist. Loosen the soil in full spade's depth and pulverize it. Add compost or leafmold if soil is stiff; also add some bonemeal; then relevel the bed.

For a good-looking clump, plant not less than ten in a group, allowing 5 inches between bulbs. Lay them out on the ground, where you want them. Lift the first bulb and stab your hand trowel its full depth, 6 to 8 inches, straight down into the soft soil directly below where the bulb lay. Pull the trowel blade toward you to widen opening. With your other hand, insert a bulb with pointed end up. Press its base firmly against bottom of the hole. Pull up and out on your trowel and let the soil fall back to fill. Press the soil over each bulb as planted. Give the bulbs two to four weeks to start their roots before watering. Tulips should not have too much moisture before they have made roots; in that condition they are easy victims to rot or other infections.

Top feed with Sacco Plant Food in the spring when bulbs are 2 to 3 inches above ground. This will insure a stronger stem and truer color.

POT CULTURE

Pot up the bulbs as soon as you receive them, in loose, coarse soil. The addition of peat moss may prove beneficial, since a continuous supply of moisture is needed and the soil should never be permitted to dry out. The bulbs are planted about 1/2 inch apart in bulb pans or 4-inch-deep flats and watered well.

Bury the pots in a pit or trench, with 8 to 10 inches of straw or leaves and soil on top and around the sides of the containers. A root-making period of eight to twelve weeks is required before pots can be brought into the warmth of the house or greenhouse.

LILIES

OUTDOOR CULTURE

Lilies must have perfect drainage, such as a gentle slope can provide. Air drainage is important, too, for a good breeze can keep many garden pests and diseases away. If your site is level and the soil heavy, then prepare raised beds for the bulbs. Take care not to damage the roots in planting.

Lilies need sunlight, at least until 2 P.M. Filtered sunlight or semi-shade may bring out the more delicate colors, but they tend to make weak stems and soft flowers. Do not plant near house walls, walks or drives that reflect sunlight or heat.

Lilium candidum should be planted with not more than 2 inches of settled soil over the top of the bulbs. Others need more covering, depending on the species.

Lilies are gross feeders and root deeply. They need a porous, well-aerated soil, rich in humus and well-balanced plant food. They like a good mulch of well-rotted cow manure, rich compost or decaying leafmold, and this can be applied several times during the growing season. The mulch keeps the soil cool, discourages weak growth and eliminates the need for surface cultivation which might hurt the stem roots. Shallow-rooted ground cover keeps the ground shaded and is beneficial. Do not expect your Lilies to compete with strong-growing perennials or shrubs.

POT CULTURE

The soil mixture must be loose and porous. Two parts sandy loam, one of leafmold, and one of sand is good. An inch of gravel should be placed in the bottom for drainage. Fill the pot half full of soil mix, and a handful of sand, set the bulb on the sand, then surround with more sand. The pot is then filled with soil mix, watered, labeled, staked and put in a cool place until spring. Control aphids and fungus diseases with a good spray.

LILY-OF-THE-VALLEY

Lily-of-the-Valley can be had in flower from January through May by successive plantings. It is grown from specially pre-cooled bulbs or pips that come from Europe, especially Germany, and are sold in bundles. Grow them in a box 8 inches deep, in a deep bulb pan, or in a bench if large quantities are wanted. Sand, peat or sphagnum moss may be used as the planting medium.

The pips are planted with the crown extending about 1/2 inch above the surface. Keep them covered with heavy paper for about two weeks, then gradually let them have full light. Bottom heat is wanted, about 70 to 80 degrees. The covered propagating bench is a good place to grow them. Water heavily during this period, tapering off when the flower buds appear. The pips are useless once they have been forced.

CALLA LILIES

The Callas are good subjects to grow because they require so little attention. The flowers last a long time when the plants are grown slowly, and the plant continues to provide attractive and useful foliage after the flowers are gone.

The rhizomes may be potted up any time from August through December. Smaller ones can go into 5 or 6-inch pots. They are not fussy as to soil, and your regular compost should prove excellent.

Callas will grow in any temperature from 50 to 70 degrees, but the flowers will have more substance and last longer when grown at 50 to 55 degrees. The rhizomes should be watered sparingly until growth starts. Then they can take more water, and will be benefited by one or two feedings of ammonium sulphate solution. Flowers come in about two weeks.

CROCUS

Plant in a well-drained location where they will have full sun. They may be used in the rock garden or under shrubs and perennials, where they will bloom before the larger plants show their leaves. Set the corms 4 inches deep, in groups, and do not cut off the foliage until it has thoroughly ripened.

FREESIA

You miss something really worth while if you don't grow a few pots of Freesias. The foliage is scraggly and unattractive, but the blooms are fragrant and lovely. You can have them for cutting by Christmas if you plant corms in August and grow them at 55 to 60 degrees. Plant them in shallow bulb pans or 4-inch-deep flats. Use a light soil consisting of four parts rotted sod and manure loam, and one of peat or leafmold. Fill the pans or flats and press the corms into the soil. They are cornucopia-shaped and the point is the top. Water well and place under the greenhouse bench or in a pit or cold-frame protected from frost. Do not water again until growth starts. You can grow them at any temperature from 48 to 60 degrees. Flowers can be had from late December into March.

Supports are needed, and a circular frame made of 1/4 or 1/2 inch mesh wire around the inside rim of the pot, or of bamboo stakes and string, is satisfactory.

IRIS

Dutch, English and Spanish bulbous Iris are suited for winter flowering in the greenhouse. Wedgwood, Emperor, White Excelsior and Yellow Queen are fine varieties. They are grown for cut flowers in flats or bulb pans. Plant the bulbs during September, about 2 inches apart and 3 inches deep. Water thoroughly and treat the same as tulips and narcissus. Start bringing them into the greenhouse in November. They grow best at a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees.

OXALIS

A delightful subject for pots and hanging baskets. Grow in a soil that is light, and feed occasionally with liquid manure or ammonium sulphate. In the spring the plants may be set in the rock garden, where they often bloom on until you lift and bring them into the greenhouse in the fall.
